

Community Management Playbook

Response Framework & Macros

Community management is a sales channel disguised as a support task. This playbook shows how to run it that way without sounding robotic.

What's inside

- Response time targets by channel
- Tone of voice decision rules
- 40 reusable reply macros
- Lead qualification in the DMs
- Escalation criteria and handoffs

Service Levels

- 01 Comments answered within two hours during business days
- 02 DMs answered within one hour where sales intent exists
- 03 Never leave a negative comment unanswered overnight
- 04 Weekend cover for paid campaign periods

Tone Rules

- 01 Match the customer's register, never outrank it
- 02 Answer the question before adding brand personality
- 03 Apologise once, then move to resolution
- 04 Avoid emoji in complaint threads

Turning Comments Into Pipeline

- 01 Identify intent signals: pricing, comparison, availability
- 02 Move qualified conversations to DM, then to email
- 03 Ask one qualifying question before pitching
- 04 Track DM-sourced leads as a distinct channel

Escalation

- 01 Legal, safety, or medical claims escalate immediately
- 02 Repeat complaints from one user move to a private channel
- 03 Anything involving a named employee goes to leadership
- 04 Log every escalation with a resolution owner
