

Website Copy Framework

Page-by-Page Templates

Most website copy fails because it describes the company instead of the customer. These templates force the customer-first structure that converts browsers into enquiries.

What's inside

- Hero formula: outcome, proof, action
- Service page structure that pre-sells
- About page that builds trust, not ego
- Pricing page objection handling
- CTA copy bank with 30 variants

Homepage Hero

- 01 Line 1: the outcome you deliver, in the customer's words
- 02 Line 2: who it is for and what makes you different
- 03 Proof element within one scroll — logos, rating, or number
- 04 One primary CTA and one low-commitment secondary

Service Pages

- 01 Lead with the problem before describing the solution
- 02 List deliverables concretely — no vague capability language
- 03 Include process so buyers know what happens after they sign
- 04 Close with pricing context and a single next step

About Page

- 01 Open with why the company exists, not when it was founded
- 02 Name real people with real roles
- 03 Show the work, not adjectives about the work
- 04 End with an invitation, not a wall of history

CTA Copy Rules

- 01 Be specific: "Get a free homepage concept" beats "Learn more"
- 02 State the commitment level explicitly
- 03 Remove risk words and add time expectations
- 04 One primary action per screen
